Big Parade To Feature Hallowe'en Program

If you are afraid of goblins and witches don't be down town Tuesday night for the streets will be full of them.

They may be swinging jack o'lanterns or grotesque pumpkins on this Hallowe'en as they swarm in from all parts of the town to join in the grand community party which the Andover Recreation committee and other sponsoring organizations are arranging for their fun and amusement.

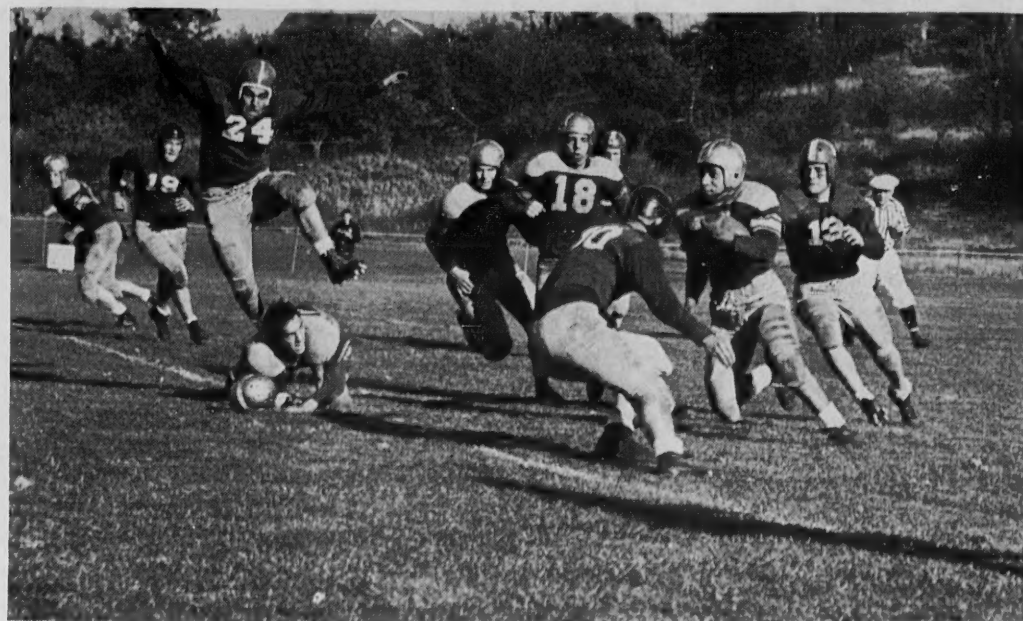

It is the eve of the bobbing for apples, pinning the tail on the donkey and other juvenile frolic. It is the big night when children of all ages parade the streets in costume and mask, singly and in groups, for a round of fun.

The big party Tuesday night will get under way about 6.30 p. m., when the costumed youngsters will line up on High street just off the square. Then the parade will start promptly at 6.45 p. m. It will move through the square to Main street, Punchard avenue and Bartlett street to the Memorial auditorium.

Besides the All Girls' band of Punchard high school there will also be a Hilly Billy band riding in a truck to provide music for the marchers. The band will also play later for some of the dancing.

The committee has arranged for the children up through the sixth grade to have their entertainment program and the awarding of prizes

But how, our customers ask, can we sell merchandise within 2 cents of what it would cost us to replace? Very easy . . . Last August we bought in a specified amount of merchandise with the idea of running a BIG CANNED GOODS SALE (similar to the sale we ran last January during which we sold 400 cases in one month!) The Korean situation changed our plans in August and we were left with over 200 cases of canned goods on our hands. Here is the JOKER . . . that merchandise has now gone up in price WHOLESALÉ as much as $3.00 a case. BIG SAVINGS for us because we do not have to buy it NOW! This is the merchandise that we have been telling you about since last August . . . we will give everyone who asks a reasonable quantity at the OLD PRICES! This SALE in view of the additional taxes which have been passed on to the wage earner will prove a slight easement on purchasing the necessities of life . . .

In our community, we've earned a low rate. We've earned it by driving carefully and causing fewer accidents.

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

EIGHT QUESTIONS FOR VOTERS

There are eight initiative questions on the ballot which will have to be decided by the voters November 7.

They relate to matters that have such a far-reaching effect that they should be studied carefully before that date so that upon entering a polling booth each voter will be familiar with the issues they present.

In our initiative system the legislature is allowed to pass upon a measure so that the voters may have some guide to go by. On two of the more controversial measures, however, the voters are without such a guide as the legislature did not take a vote on them.

These are questions 3 and 4 on the ballot. No. 3 would give to deserving aged persons 63 or over the sum of $75 a month at an additional cost to the commonwealth estimated at $53 million annually. Opponents of the measure point out that it is tied in with No. 4 which provides a state lottery for paying assistance to needy aged persons, the blind, and to dependent children.

Many civic, church and trade groups are against No. 4 and are working for its defeat. They are also becoming aware that No. 3 would impose quite a levy on the taxpayers of the commonwealth, especially if No. 4 is defeated. Even if both are accepted the additional revenue for the lottery winners and for the poor will have to come out of the people of the commonwealth!

No. 5 would establish a flat rate for compulsory automobile insurance. Under our present community merit rating system the rate is based not where the accidents occur but on who caused them. In other words, the communities which have established a low rating would pay an additional amount to cover the cost of accidents by drivers of other communities.

It is estimated that the additional insurance would cost the operators of Andover $100,000 annually. The legislature has disapproved this measure.

Questions 1 and 2 apply to changes in the state constitution. Both have the approval of the legislature. No. 6 relates to pari-mutuel betting on horse and dog races in this county. No. 7 is the license question and No. 8 applies to the extension of rent control.

The secretary of the commonwealth will issue a pamphlet designed to give the voters sufficient information about all questions so that they will know what they are voting for or against.

Study them carefully; then make up your mind that you are going to get out and vote.

Growing old is no more than a bad habit which a busy man has no time to form.—Andre Maurois.

VIEWS OF THE NEWS

By LEONARD F. JAMES

Whatever the law may state, a problem of staggering proportions is how to figure out when a communist is a communist, and what to do with him fast enough to prevent his doing damage. And we don't mean mere word definitions or card-carrying party members. We are concerned about the characters who don't belong to any official communist party, but carry out the orders of Moscow.

We'd like to know how many communists there are in this country. And so would the United States government. Two days from this writing is the deadline when all party members are supposed to register with the justice department. That's what the law—the internal security bill—calls for. Passed during the last week in September it requires all communist organizations and their members to register within 30 days. To date, none have.

How Long To Prove A Communist Is One?

And say they don't? What happens? We can probably nail them in a couple of years or so. If we're lucky. Because no communist or even subnormal intelligence will register. He'd be ordered not to by his party. As a registered communist he's not the slightest use to Moscow. And it is elementary that all communists act upon orders from Russia. So he won't register, and the justice department starts trying to catch up with him. First, the department must ask the subversive activities control board to declare an organization as one that must register under the terms of the act. The board must hold hearings and issue an order. This can take months. If the organization is ordered to register, it has the right of appeal. Some time later the supreme court passes on the case and, assuming it finds the organization communist, then its members must register. The party refuses to do so. Then what? Individual members must be prosecuted. And so the runaround goes. This is the bill passed by congress over the President's veto.

When Is A Communist Not A Communist?

How do we find the communists? More important, how do we prevent subversive activities? The answer may unfortunately be that we don't. Canada can offer first-hand evidence of trouble along those lines. The disturbing conclusion from Canadian experience is that the present law won't be much good. It seems to be the general policy of the party in Canada to discourage selected sympathizers from joining the party. Instead they are invited to join secret study-groups—so-called—and to take particular pains to remain secret. These persons fill out no membership forms, sign no declarations, receive no membership cards. Two purposes are served. Secrecy is maintained, but far more important, the person involved can feel that he is practically independent and is only assisting in general activities without binding himself to any organization.

Every Agent Is Checked By Moscow

All subsequent activities are directed from Moscow with incredible care. In Ottawa, for example, five parallel spy rings operate independently out of the Russian embassy, no one knowing what the other does. The N. K. V. D., or secret police, reports to its own headquarters in Moscow, the embassy to the commissariat for foreign affairs, the political section to the central committee of the Communist party of the Soviet Union, the commercial section to the secretariat for foreign trade, and the military attaché to the director of military intelligence.

Every potential agent, whether communist or not, is checked through Moscow before he can be used. Such agent is proposed by a member of the Canadian party to the chief of a section in the Russian embassy—say the military attaché. This official then gets details about his or her "possibilities"—place of work, the kind of information to which he has access. This is all sent to Moscow, and permission or refusal telegraphed back. The evidence is that Moscow would first make an independent check, presumably through one of the other four agencies operating out of the embassy in Ottawa. Sometimes Moscow takes the initiative, on the basis of names on file in Moscow, often of people who have no idea that such records are in existence.

Orders To Infiltrate Anywhere

The active or secret members do not limit themselves to getting information of interest to Moscow. They are ordered to fit into any organization that may be usable to occupy important positions in labor unions, get members into controlling offices in youth movements and international friendship councils, and even to cover themselves by taking up temporarily an anti-communist line.

Another important phase of the work is to operate a so-called "comintern intelligence system," dealing not in espionage but in obtaining and transmitting to Moscow biographical and general material on possible sympathizers who might later be fitted into one of the organizations.

Post-War Defense Information Sought

The conclusions of the royal commission investigating espionage operations are highly disconcerting. "We can say that much vital technical information which should be still secret to the authorities of Canada, Great Britain and the United States, has been made known to the Russians...We should emphasize that the bulk of the information sought related to research developments which would play an important part in the post-war defenses of Canada, the United Kingdom, the United States...The exists in Canada a fifth column organized and directed by Russian agents in Canada and in Russia. It is to be hoped that we do not count too much on the recent bill passed by congress. The Russian will see to it that their agents step annoying legislation.

with construction work on two new buildings gaining momentum.

With the liberal arts building and the faculty house beginning to take shape, passers-by can visualize the general plan of the proposed nine-building campus and can picture the future set-up of this rapidly growing institution located at Wilson's corner.

Cement has been poured for the foundation of the liberal arts building and excavation is completed for the faculty house. The latter work has been extensive because of the crypt which will be located directly beneath the chapel in the faculty house.

Both buildings to be of colonial design, similar to the present science buildings, are expected to be ready for occupancy in Sept. 1951.

Eight Questions Before Voters On Election Day

of election and inauguration day. If the amendment passes the lieutenant governor-elect would become governor. In the event of his death the order of succession would be: secretary of state, attorney-general, treasurer, auditor-elect.

No. 2 would amend the state constitution to increase the number of signatures required on an initiative or referendum.

No. 3 would reduce the age of eligibility for old age assistance from 65 to 63 years, would raise payments from a minimum of $40 to $75 a month for all recipients, or $85 if blind; and would remove all liability of sons and daughters to help their needy parents.

No. 4 provides for a commission to conduct every month a lottery drawing to raise funds which, after expenses, would be divided as follows: 50% to winners; 35% for assistance to needy aged; 7½% for needy blind; 7½% for dependent children.

No. 5 would substitute for the present merit rating system a statewide flat rate for compulsory automobile insurance.

No. 6 is one that comes every four years allowing the voters to decide if they want pari-mutual betting (a) on horse races and (b) on dog races, in this county.

No. 7 is the usual question regarding the sale of liquor in each city and town. It has three parts, (a) for the sale of all kinds of hard liquor; (b) for the sale of wine and malt beverages; (c) permitting the sale of liquor, wines and beers in package stores only.

No. 8 asks if the voter desires federal rent control continued in his community after Dec. 31, and until June 30, 1951.

The pork chop is no bigger . . . the pound no heavier than it was ten years ago. Yet the cost — per chop or per pound — has more than doubled.

In a time when you expect double prices for the same old measure, your telephone service is a welcome exception.

Your telephone reaches more people . . . your service is faster and better . . . yet, in actual cost, your telephone takes a much smaller percentage of your household budget than it did ten years ago. That's because living costs have gone up much more than telephone costs.

READINGS FOR PARENTS

Libraries and book-sellers are constantly showing new and varied materials of help to parents in the always changing job of child training. Too often perplexed adults give up searching for the best solutions by declaring this to be a "problem" generation. Some of the finest minds in the country are so concerned with solutions for these problems that every week finds new books, pamphlets and magazine writings. Out of the quantity of such material, the Memorial Hall library suggests a few of the titles which may be borrowed for home use:

Infant and Child In The Culture Of Today. Gesell

The guidance of development in home and nursery school.

Pointers For Parents. Lozier

Simply written manual on child raising problems.

The Rights Of Infants Ribble

A practicing psychiatrist outlines the various phases of a young child's development and stresses the importance of "mothering."

Parents' Manual. Wolf

A manual based on the belief that parents can and should enjoy their children.

Children Have Their Reasons Washburn

A book which demonstrates that it is insight that makes for the successful training of children.

A Girl Grows Up. Fedder

This will help the teen-age girl acquire self-confidence and emotional adjustment.

Do Adolescents Need Parents? Taylor

A readable book which treats adolescence from a common-sense point of view.

Parent And Child. Mackenzie

Common sense advice for parents, based on the author's column "Parent And Child" in the New York Times, in which she selects and passes on the best information available in this special field.

What Our Readers Say—

ADD TO TAX BURDEN

Editor of The Townsman:

There may be a hidden pleasure to some citizens to pay higher than necessary taxes for benefits that they will never share in to the degree of the taxes they will pay for them. If so, I have not found it. Nor do I know anyone personally who, after a cold analysis of utopian spending sprees, has. A careful study of these plans ends up with a decided NO.

If you want to add heavily to your own tax burden, vote yes for referenda 3, 4 and 5. But, most of us do not want this. Therefore, if you want to keep your own taxes down, vote NO on referenda 3, 4 and 5.

Very truly yours,
C. A. Wood

STALIN NOT RUSSIAN

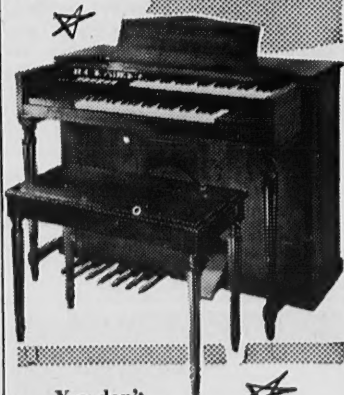

Editor of the Townsman:

Your "Views of the News" column appears to cite Stalin as a sample of Russian character. But Stalin is not a Russian, no more than Napoleon was a Frenchman, or than King Herod was a Jew, or the emperor Trajan a Roman.

Discuss Events
In Government

The founders of this country bought our freedom at too great a price for us to lose it lightly, Cong. Charles H. Plumley of Vermont told members of the Andover Service club last Thursday night while commenting upon the governmental trend for the past several years toward socialism.

The Vermont solon, who is retiring voluntarily next January after serving eight consecutive terms in congress, interspersed his talk with numerous anecdotes and observations gathered during his 16 years at Washington and called for more clear thinking on the part of the American voters instead of letting some radio commentator or newspaper columnist do their thinking for them.

Pres. Stanley F. Swanton presided at the dinner meeting which was opened with a blessing by the Rev. Levering Reynolds, Jr. The free dinner was won by Frank Humphrey and the door prize went to Thaxter Eaton.

A committee to distribute cards to every house in Andover urging every voter to be sure to vote Nov. 7, was announced. Ellsworth H. Lewis, who provided the cards, was made chairman. Other members are Henry S. Hopper, Guy B. Howe, Jr., John M. Murray, James R. Mosher, George B. Westhaver, Walter I. Buxton, Edward A. Romeo, Burton Jenkins, Eugene A. Bernardin, Jr., Walter Pearson, T. Augustine Farragher, Francis E. Wilson, Irving Whitcomb, George E. Haselton, William A. Doherty and Will G. Brown.

Sec. James R. Mosher announced that Atty. Roland H. Sherman was appointed to the board of directors in place of David L. Coutts who has resigned.

CHOIR TO HOLD PARTY

The members of the Free church senior choir will enjoy a Halloween party tonight following the weekly rehearsal. The committee consists of Donald L. Amy, Mrs. Agnes Burdett, Rickey Cargill, John Carver, Mrs. Etta Chadwick, Mrs. Sadie Denholm, Miss Gladys Gill and Miss Shirley Smith.

Boosters To Give Four Scholarships

With its main objective this year the presentation of four $100 scholarships to deserving Pynchard high school students, the Boosters club has sent out 3000 letters in an appeal for funds.

According to the present plan two scholarships will be awarded to two boys and two girls. The Boosters feel that this will be a lasting present to the boys and girls which can never be taken away from them.

In addition to the four scholarships the Boosters plan this fall to raise enough funds to erect a memorial flagpole at the south end of the football field, and to give 12 pairs of football pants to the junior high football team.

Contributions may be sent to James P. Christie, treasurer, at the town house.

T. E. Andrew, Jr., Shawsheen; Mrs. Halbert Dow, West Parish.

The Red Cross blood program, begun in 1948 as a civilian program, now has two additional phases; blood is being shipped continually to our fighting forces, and fractions are going into the stockpiling considered essential by civil defense authorities in case of atomic disaster.

General MacArthur, in commenting on the blood program in Korea said, "It must offer a donor satisfaction to know that a small amount of blood, given painlessly and harmlessly, may do a great amount of good."

It might be added that only a small amount of time is involved, too. The bleeding process takes only a few minutes and the entire visit to the blood center usually requires less than an hour.

Regulations regarding eligibility to give blood have been relaxed somewhat as a result of medical research. And former donors will be glad to learn that rules about eating before a donation are now easier. Here is what a donor needs to know before giving blood:

1. Donor should eat a nourishing meal between two and four hours before donating. Fatty foods, such as milk, cream, butter, etc., should be omitted. Plenty of liquid, such as water, black coffee with sugar, fruit juices, or soft drinks, should be taken during and after the meal.

2. Age limits are from 18 to 59 years, inclusive. Persons 18 to 20, inclusive, may donate, providing they have a Red Cross release form signed by parent.

3. Donations are accepted from all such persons in good health. A doctor at the center will make sure that you are physically qualified.
